

Abstract of the Disclosure

A ceramic electronic device is protected at the surface from retention of water, thus having improved operation reliability, and a method of manufacturing the device is provided. A protective layer is formed on the ceramic element and external electrodes by dehydrating condensation of organic silicon compound.

20110301 0110